Digital technologies have increasingly occupied a central position in the study of the ancient world. Our panelists will demonstrate how some of these technologies are used both as pedagogical tools and as an invaluable way of creating new knowledge of the ancient world.

Richard Wenghofer
Classical Studies, Nipissing University

Mark Wachowiak
Computer Science, Nipissing University

Alex McAuley
Classical Studies, McGill University

Steve Mason
History, University of Aberdeen